Indiana tourism recognizes local guide

Former president transitions to a paid position with VMI

Dattilo to head '365 Project'

BY BOB DEMAREE

After serving as president of Visit Madison Inc. the last three years, Lucy Dattilo has embarked on a new role as VMI's "365 Project" manager, a paid staff position.

Andrew Forrester, VMI executive director, said Dattilo was "brought on as a full-time employee to take advantage of her institutional knowledge, experience and passion for Madison to increase our capacity to get projects done and bring a few important project goals to fruition."

Forrester said Dattilo's "focus will be '365 Madison', which is broad in a sense that we need to be thinking about the everyday visitor experience, but very focused right now on a few key projects to help us do that."

Visit Madison Inc.'s "Experience Madison, Indiana" marketing guide was recently named the Best Visitors Guide for 2022 among marketing budgets under $300,000 at the Indiana Tourism Association's annual conference.

The guide, which showcases and promotes events and places in Jefferson County, was designed by Sarah Prasil, VMI's executive marketing director, who VMI Executive Director Andrew Forrester had high praise for at Monday's board meeting.

Forrester said in addition to the award-winning 2022 guide, this year's guide, which is now out for 2023, has received "rave reviews." He said many visitor centers contract that work out to public relations companies "that have never set foot" in a community but Prasil does the work herself.

"Sarah puts blood, sweat and tears into that, and she should be commended," he said.

"We'll see if we can win that back-to-back," said Forrester, "because I think this year's guide is even better than last year's."

Forrester reported he and Prasil recently attended the Heartland Travel Showcase in Cincinnati that focuses on group tours. He said Jefferson County tourism hasn't been represented there since 2017 but wants to change that in the future. "That's getting us back into that market. Unless you go to those, and make sure those group travel companies know that you want to host them, they don't know. Being there is the first part of that, and I'm hoping we will see that start to pay off in 2024" with more group tours coming to the county.

SW schools adopts bus driver contracts

BY BOB DEMAREE

Southwestern Jefferson County School's board of trustees adopted new contracts for bus drivers at Monday's meeting but not before a discussion with drivers about the contract process.

As of Tuesday afternoon, three of the drivers had signed the new contract while three others had not yet signed although they still may do so, or possibly seek one of the two other routes that are being put up for bid.

Bids for the routes were opened at the February school board meeting, and on Monday, the board members received two-year contract award recommendations to six drivers for six routes — all at a rate of $4.84 per mile — from Jason Watson, assistant superintendent and transportation director.

Regular readers of this column will already know about the Madison Music Studio on East Second Street, where proprietor Brent Evans has been recording local artists and aspiring singers for a couple years now. In a recent conversation with Brent, he related a most amazing story.

"Some months back this man showed up at the door of the studio, asking if he could record a song or two. If I'm being honest, he looked a little sketchy, but if I've learned anything, it's to never judge a book by its cover. So I let him in and asked how I could help.

"He said he had a bunch of songs he'd been writing over the years and he'd like to get them recorded before it was too late. Too late, I wondered? What does that mean? But he really didn't

All five suspects were lodged in the Jefferson County Jail where they remain incarcerated in lieu of a $1,000 cash bond each.

On Monday, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office located a missing 14-year-old girl from Colorado who had be reported as a runaway juvenile on Feb. 19 and possibly with non-family acquaintances in Jefferson County.

The search was part of a joint ongoing investigation with Colorado Springs Police Department. Information was received that led deputies with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office to the Deputy, Indiana, area. While at that location, they received information that redirected their efforts to the Hanover area where Jefferson County deputies and Hanover Police Officer Max Gibson were able to locate the missing juvenile and her acquaintance on Carmel Road near West State Road 56.

According to a release by the sheriff's department, upon spotting law enforcement the girl and her acquaintance attempted to conceal themselves in a wood line. Police searched the area with assistance from Jefferson County Sheriff's Department K-9 Kuno and his handler Chief Deputy Laura Pickel and both juveniles were located in the woods safely taken into custody without further issues.

The missing teen from Colorado is being held until officials from Colorado arrive to take custody.

Butler Park recovery from cold weather damage taking longer than expected

BY TIM HENDRICK
PAXTON MEDIA GROUP

The cold Arctic air that swept through the Ohio River Valley on Dec. 23 left a lingering impact on General Butler State Resort Park in Carrollton, Kentucky. Sub-zero temperatures froze and burst pipes, causing leaks that damaged a large number of rooms at the lodged as well as the kitchen, restaurant and business office.

The park has recently opened its restaurant at the nearby convention center and is serving lunch with a buffet Wednesday through Sunday and dinner with a buffet on Friday and Saturday nights.

"It is actually going really well, not 100% like we were at the lodge but seeing more business," Gen. Butler State Resort Park Manager Susan Spears said. "We have more room so we are including some activities like Bingo, trivia night and a paint-and-sip activity. We have more room at the convention center so on Saturdays or Saturday nights we are hosting a special activity and on Friday nights a specialty buffet."

"The repair news for the lodge is not what the community wants to hear," Spears said. "The state moves slowly, sort of like watching paint dry. At this point, I would just love to see paint cans to start with."

On March 23, Spears said a group including DECCA, Finance Cabinet and the state parks did a walk-through at the park to get a feel for the scope of work, the current status and the immediate needs to get the park fully operational.

"There is not a timeline or a budget," she said. "The group on March 23 has to figure out the best way to move forward. Do they do one floor at a time or knock out the low hanging fruit, is it the restrooms and the restaurant. The kitchen is in bad shape and it will take a lot to bring it up to code. It has been grandfathered in for a long time. The ceiling had to come down and it exposed all the issues. The kitchen will take some time and that is why we set up at the conference center."

"Honestly, we are looking at six months as a miracle and most likely a minimum of a year before we are 100% operational," Spears said. "I do not have hopes for us to be able to do much by Christmas."

The park got its boiler up and operational last week, and there are currently 19 rooms available for guests compared to the usual 53. Spears said repairs are moving in the right direction. Some of the rooms have very minimal damage so they may decide to work on those next to get them ready for guests.

She said they can get into the rooms and the administrative building relatively quickly, but the restaurant is going to be a longer project.

"The impact on group sales has been huge," Spears said. "I do not want to put a number on it but there has been a significant loss of revenue. We have lost groups that have been coming here for years and groups we have worked hard to get here have been lost for this year."

Spears said there is currently no downstairs meeting space available at the lodge. One room is being used for the business office, another for storage and a third room is gutted.

"Storage has been a problem," she said. "You take out 34 rooms, the lounge, the business office and the restaurant and kitchen, those furnishings have to go somewhere. The recreation center is full of stored items and the pods in the parking lot."

One of the downstairs meeting rooms at the park has been converted into business offices in the aftermath of the building's flooding by water lines that burst during frigid weather last December.

The downstairs restrooms at the Butler State Resort Park lodge had to be gutted after water pipes burst due to cold weather and damaged the lodge. The park is waiting for contractors to begin repairs that could take another six months.

Spears said she had to layoff employees from every department, but has been able to bring most of those workers back as things have slowly reopened. She noted that a couple of the front desk staff are helping with the kitchen. The grass is greening up so maintenance will be returning and hopefully everyone we laid off will be back sometime soon.

Currently all of the park's cabins are in use. The two-night minimum stay has been waived for weeknights but is still in effect for weekends. Spears said the campground is scheduled full every weekend after April 1 and Camper Appreciation Weekend is the last weekend of April.

"We were coming out of the pandemic and making headway then this happened," Spears said. "This will give us a chance to rebrand, what can we do to move forward, focus on what has been neglected, what can we do to make people want to come back to the park."

Manwhile, Spears said the park will offer music at the conference center and outdoor recreation this summer. It may also offer a day camp once weekly to immerse children into nature.

She said interest in pickleball has also increased and the park has pickleball markings on the tennis courts on the back side of the park. Spears noted the courts are not in the best shape but should be OK with a good cleaning.

The winter project of the maintenance crew was to clean up the brush and trees on the Butler Mansion side of the lower entrance. She said they had tried to let it go back to a more natural habitat but didn't do it right. The park also plans to use fresh produce from the garden space in the kitchen this summer. Spears said using fresh, locally grown and Kentucky Proud products benefits the kitchen and customers.

New LED lighting was installed in the mezzanine and the restaurant during the park's closure. New lights in the parking lots make those areas brighter and improve the safety and security of visitors and employees.

The park has completed a golf course trail and added two miles to the trail system for a total of 12 miles of trails. The Story Walk trail has been moved to the front of the park and Spears said permanent signage will be going up. The trail is a collaboration between North American Stainless, Three Rivers Health District and the Carroll County Public Library.

Spears said the Friends of Butler support group may host its own outdoor concert series and members are still fundraising to develop an amphitheater.

"I know it is disappointing right now, but good is coming," Spears said. "We will come out of this better."

want to talk about his life or how he came to be at my door. He wouldn't say where he lived or where he was originally from.

"So I loaned him one of the guitars in the studio and put him in front of a microphone. What followed was nothing short of unbelievable!"

As Brent was telling me this story, a vague memory came back to me. I had seen this guy before, and heard him sing. It was at an informal jam session at Rusty and Andra Bladen's riverfront place, over in Milton. A group of us had gotten together to take turns playing songs in their little camp shelter down by the river. This was over a year ago.

This man had just shown up and joined the circle. We didn't see a car pull up, so I don't know how he got there. Anyway, nobody seemed to know him. He just waited his turn, and then he sang the funniest song I'd ever heard, something about his wife being pregnant and how he was drinking for three. It was hilarious. I asked Rusty if he remembered the guy.

"Oh yeah, he was a hell of a songwriter," said Rusty. "Very good lyrics, and well structured melodies. He wasn't the greatest singer, remember? He looked like he had a lot of miles on him, and it showed in his voice, if you know what I mean. But man, he could write a catchy tune!"

So I asked Brent Evans what he managed to capture at his recording studio. "Well, over the course of about three months he came in a number of times," explained Brent. "We got something like 14 songs laid down by the end. He played all the guitar himself, and he's very good. I'm not sure where he learned, but it seems like he was classically trained. He understood music theory and chord structure.

"Honestly, I never could get any more of his life story. He could have been a college professor or a corporate exec or who knows? You can tell from his song lyrics he probably had a family and a career at one time.

"Anyway, I ended up with all these songs, and I thought it would be great to share them with the world. He told me he didn't care what I did with them. So I created a little YouTube channel and posted them so people can listen if they want.

"I named the YouTube channel 'Cantankerous Jim' and if you search Cantankerous Jim on YouTube you will find it. I never really got his name, but he seemed like a Jim, or maybe a Bill. And he was a bit cantankerous, no question! Give it a listen and see for yourself."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

We have a new open mic opportunity in town on Friday night at Crafted Coffee. Thanks to owner Noah for hosting that. On Saturday we have one of those "embarrassment of riches" situations, where there's so much great music it's not even fair. At Red Bike Hall they are staging the always popular music from Jesus Christ Superstar. This show is likely sold out, but it wouldn't hurt to check. At Thomas Family Winery it will be magical and sublime with Tim Brickley and his band, as always. And the music at the Taproom will be extremely high level on Saturday, also. And that's not all, by a long shot. Check out the calendar below and plan your fun musical evening.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

He said they also attended Indiana Media Marketplace in Indianapolis to find out what stories travel writers are seeking. "This is an opportunity to talk about all of the assets that Jefferson County has for people to come and highlight" places and things that exist locally.

Kara Hinze, coordinator of the Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art, noted that this year's event will be the weekend of Sept. 30-Oct. 1 and so far interest in the juried event is on the rise.

"We are seeing an increase in artist numbers so far this year," Hinze said. "I think a lot of the marketing we did last year has made an impact on this year."

Erin Kindle, coordinator of the Ribberfest BBQ & Blues Festival, said although 3,811 tickets were sold to last year's event, organizers are still working to get attendance back to what it was before the arrival of the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020.

"People are coming back but we're still not at full capacity," she said. "Last year was a really good year but we're still working" to return to pre-COVID levels.

Kindle, who is also coordinator of the Nights Before Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes, said efforts are being made towards having more sponsorships for that event which divides its proceeds among the Jefferson County Historical Society, Historic Madison Inc., Lanier Mansion and the Masonic Schofield House.

Historically, she said the event hasn't had many sponsorships except what patrons see on their tickets. "The purpose of the event is to increase economic impact and bring people to Madison," she said, but they also would like to generate more funds for the organizations the event benefits.

"For our historical sites to have value in having this event, the donations we give them have to at least encompass the expense they're putting in to decorate and to have their staff there," she said.

CONTRACTS

Kayla Hubbard, awarded the contract for Route 14, said she was "happy with what I got, but my question is what's the point in bidding? What's the point in going through all of that as contract drivers to submit a bid if you're going put us where you want us and give us what you want anyway."

Board president Rick Stockdale said a bidding process is required by state law which sets the pa of how it's done. "The rates are all negotiated," he said. In a year of financial uncertainty for the school corporation, Stockdale said the board considered "what's the most economical for us, and to be fair and to make an investment in the drivers." He said Southwestern also has to remain competitive in the market because it is competing with other school districts for drivers.

Stockdale said the thought process was to get the contract drivers to the point where they were all paid the same "to do pretty much the same job. The only variable would be how long mileage-wise you would be driving."

He said it was an effort to make it "fair across the board and make it standardized because you're all driving and doing the same job ... What we came up with is a very fair contract."

With two more routes still to be bid on this year — Route 4 and Route 11 — driver Wanda Blair asked if they would be paid at the same $4.84 per mile rate provided to the six contracts approved by the board Monday.

"Logically, look at it this way. If we made all of them the same, do you think we're going to make two new people different?" Southwestern Superintendent Jeff Bates said. "We have always been fair and we always will be fair."

In other business, the board:

• Awarded a contract for a new security and camera surveillance system to Schiller Hardware for $523,247.65 with 96 terabyte servers. After receiving two bids for more than $650,000 at the February meeting, Watson returned with lower bids that were closer to the $500,000 that had been budgeted for the project as requested by the school board.

As part of the effort to save costs, the megapixels of camera was lowered, resulting in lower resolution images, along with decreasing storage capacity which will shorten the length of time video can be stored to 30 days.

• Tabled a decision on repairing the high school elevator which a quote of $197,450 which was received. Stockdale said in conversations with school corporation maintenance director Roger Bickers that he believes a new elevator can be purchased at basically the cost of the repair. "Why would we put the money into renovation if new one costs about the same?" Stockdale asked, recommending the board delay a decision until costs for a new elevator can be confirmed.

• Approved appropriation of $59,500 from ESSR (Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief Fund through the American Rescue Act) funds for Komputrol Schools Financials Software updates that will provide necessary upgrades.

• Laura Boldery, the school corporation's chief financial officer, said a recent school audit cost the corporation $51,800. Special Service Unit will reimburse the corporation $11,277 and the cafeteria will reimburse $15,687 for their portions of the audit.

• With a boil water advisory issued in Hanover early in the week, Bates had requested that parents provide water for their children to bring to school. He said the school corporation purchased 200 cases of water to be made available for students who did not bring water from home. The boil water advisory was lifted on Tuesday.

• Approved applying for a five-year Common School Technology Loan for $120,000 that will go towards strengthening computer firewalls and other technology improvements.

• Approved the Wilson Education Center Membership Agreement and the Food to School cooperative agreement for the 2023-2024 school year.

POSITION

Dattilo served as president of VMI's board during a challenging time when the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic resulted in cancellation of Jefferson County festival events in 2020, resulting in a significant drop in revenue for the county's innkeepers and the taxes they pay to support tourism.

The aftermath led to a decrease in funds available for VMI along with several staffing changes including laying off executive director Tawana Thomas in February 2021 and Dattilo stepping up to provide more leadership in a volunteer capacity as board president.

After the tourism slowdown in 2020 due to the pandemic, there was a strong bounce back in 2021 with Rockport Analytics reporting total visitor spending in Jefferson County at $51.5 million, which is a 25% increase over 2020, and a 13% increase from the previous best year ever in 2019. The county has also seen record innkeeper tax collections for two consecutive years.

Forrester said in her role as VMI board president, Dattilo worked to ensure the success of Jefferson County tourism in spite of it being a tumultuous time for VMI. "I think it's fair to say she had a goal of making sure that Visit Madison was stable and moving forward into the future, and once that was complete she looked at it and said 'How can I best continue to serve?' and this provided a perfect opportunity for her to serve in a different capacity."

As a result of becoming a paid staff member, Dattilo has resigned from the VMI board of directors because she can't serve on a board and be employed by the same organization. She also can't serve as the City Council's representative to the VMI board and get paid at the same time either.

"These two things address ethics," Dattilo said.

Dattilo is looking forward to her new role with VMI. "365 is about addressing the Madison/Jefferson County experience every day. This includes festivals, too. VMI has a history of assisting and executing great events which produce great economic impact for our community but those are just a few weekends throughout the year. Our hotels and tourism-based businesses have a 365 attitude and VMI needs to share that vision. After all, these hotels and tourism-based businesses are VMI's reason for existence."

Prior to resigning from the board, Dattilo already had declined to serve again this year as VMI board president, and VMI still does not have a president but Cari Morrison Bear is currently assuming leadership as the vice president.

Forrester expects City Council to decide on a replacement for Dattilo on the board of directors in the coming weeks, and also anticipates a new board president will be elected at an upcoming meeting.

At Monday's VMI board meeting, there was discussion about the creating a description for the duties of president.

"What I've done the last few years hasn't been a traditional role of the board president," said Dattilo, who stepped up her role during a time when VMI did not have an executive director. She said the president of the board of directors,"should be advisory. You pay people to do their jobs, and you just make sure they do it well" by setting the parameters for what those jobs should be. "Other than that, it's not what I was doing. What I was doing was out of necessity. You don't want to be a working board."

Dattilo, a Shawe Memorial High School graduate, was a psychology major at Indiana University. For 14 years, she operated Something Simple, a retail store in downtown Madison. Dattilo is a Republican member of City Council, elected in 2019 and currently seeking another term in this year's municipal election.

Report expected in June on treatment facility needs

BY BOB DEMAREE

With a residential treatment facility needs assessment currently underway in Jefferson County, the subcommittee behind that effort met Thursday for the first time in five months.

The needs assessment is being done by Education Services Center of the University of Cincinnati, said Michael Hicks, the community coordinator involved in that effort.

"I'm pleased to tell you it's moving ahead," Hicks said.

Hicks presented a timeline in which a final report is due by June 2023. With research from secondary data sources underway this month, focus group interviews are slated for April with data analysis in May.

Jim Courter, who along with Jefferson County Commissioner Ron Lee formed the subcommittee of the Justice Reinvestment Advisory Council (JRAC), emphasized the need for a residential treatment facility in Jefferson County, and said the needs assessment will likely prove "what we already know."

Courter expressed the importance of being expeditious. "There are people out there that need our help now," he said. Courter said he wants those in the subcommittee to be ready and prepared for that. "Can we develop an order and agenda of things to be done as we go forward? Are there things we can be considering now so we don't waste time?"

"I know everyone here is anxious to get into phase two, and that's the actual operation" of a residential treatment facility, Hicks said. "But we've got to do the study to be sure it supports our mindset. We all may have in our hearts and our minds that we know there is a need but when we start going for grants or other funding support, there's has got to be data to support our good thoughts. And when that comes, we'll move into that second phase" to know the next steps.

The subcommittee hopes to meet again next month.

JCBT allocates marketing funds to 3 nonprofit

BY BOB DEMAREE

Three local non-profits will have marketing dollars added to their funding allocations from the Jefferson County Board of Tourism after Visit Madison Inc. asked that they be appropriated that way at a meeting on Monday.

Madison Music Movement will receive $26,000 for marketing while Madison Area Arts Alliance will get $6,000 and Jefferson County Historical Society will receive $4,200.

When funding requests were approved for the three organizations at JCBT's Feb. 27 meeting, their marketing dollar requests were subtracted until they could discuss with VMI whether that agency could manage their marketing dollars.

That evaluation has taken place over the last month, with VMI Executive Director Andrew Forrester noting, "At this time, based on what those organizations are needing the money for, and what we have capacity for, it just doesn't make sense for us to take those marketing dollars on right now. Given time, maybe as we approach 2024 that may look a little different."

"I certainly appreciate the fact that the board of tourism thought about Visit Madison," said Forrester. However, he recommended that JCBT "get those funds to the organizations" now and "we'll keep working with you as we look to next year."

In February, JCBT allotted $44,500 to Madison Music Movement so the additional $26,000 brings the overall allocation to $70,500. Madison Area Arts Alliance had been given $50,650 and the marketing funds will increase that total to $56,650. Jefferson County Historical Society previously received $31,000 and now had a total of $35,200.

Todd Boone, president of the Madison Music Movement (M3), said that organization would be fine if VMI could take the marketing funding and out-source those dollars with influence from M3.

Forrester said VMI would be willing to help M3 by providing direction toward designing materials "but it still would be an outside firm doing it in getting us through the end of the year" until there's greater capacity for VMI to handle that.

Charlie Rohlfing of M3 said the $26,000 for marketing is critical because of what it can do move music forward in Madison. "It's a slow burn for all 12 months" that includes search engine optimization (SEO) and blogging that helps the Madison music events to be found when people are looking online. "This thing, I'm very excited about, needs to happen. Our venues are like, 'We're having music. We're doing it. Now get the people in here to support it.' So, whether we spend it or (VMI) spends it, it just needs to be spent soon."

Forrester said he doesn't want Madison Music Movement to wait until VMI "can get somebody on board in another two months" to be able to do the necessary work to draw people to Madison through online searches to M3's various events and shows.

John Nyberg, JCHS executive director, said VMI's marketing assistance would not necessarily pertain to how the historical society will use the money. "The bulk of ours would be for a new website, so it isn't something they would be doing anyway," he said.

Kim Nyberg, executive of the Madison Area Arts Alliance, said the marketing dollars will go toward new marketing materials that have already been prepared. "Primarily, we already have those pieces designed and put together. We just need to push and order new supplies," she said.

In voting unanimously to allocate those marketing dollars to M3, MAAA and JCHS, board member Jim Bartlett recommended that it be done with each organization managing its own funds "with the recommendation that when practical and feasible they coordinate that with VMI."

During the Feb. 27 meeting, a proposal was also made to allocate $25,000 each to the Madison Regatta, Madison Chautauqua Festival of Arts and Ribberfest BBQ & Blues which JCBT president Trevor Crafton characterized as "the three big boys that have been here for awhile."

Crafton asked that each of those three organizations submit a proposal to JCBT by April 10 about how they would use the funds, and send a representative to JCBT's April 24 meeting to make the request.

From a tourism perspective, Forrester said he "would like to see that money go towards marketing" although he realizes there may be other needs by the three organizations. "I want to say it's important to market your event," he said. "At the end of the day, we want these funds to be used so people come here and they generate additional dollars that will come back into the innkeepers tax."

How Much Annuity Income Can I Expect to Receive?

"Layin' it on the line"

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Annuities are a great way to ensure your financial security in the long term. Annuities provide regular payments that can help you pay bills and cover other expenses while also helping protect against inflation and market downturns. Annuities are popular with many retirees as they offer a steady income stream that can last throughout retirement.

The question is, how much income does an annuity payout on average?

The answer depends on several factors, including what type of annuity you purchase and the terms of the agreement. Annuities typically guarantee a fixed payment amount or can be variable, depending on the performance of certain investments or indexes. Annuities are also available with riders that increase the amount of income you receive.

If you're purchasing a fixed annuity, the amount of income is predetermined by the terms of the agreement and is typically based on your age and the length of time over which payments will be received. Annuities with guaranteed payouts usually offer higher rates than variable annuities, which depend largely on investment performance. Annuity income may also be increased by adding riders like inflation protection or other options that guarantee additional payments.

Generally, an annuity can provide anywhere from several hundred dollars to several thousand dollars a month in retirement income, depending on the type of product purchased and any riders added. As with most investments, it's essential to consider all of your options before purchasing an annuity to ensure you're getting the best deal.

Maximizing your payout

In addition, there are several steps you can take to maximize your annuity income and get more out of your investment. Annuitants should review their policy details regularly, as rates may change over time. Annuitants should also consider adding riders to their policy if it suits their particular circumstances. These additional features may help increase the income received from an annuity. Annuitants may also increase the amount of money they receive by taking a lump sum distribution option or electing periodic payments.

Overall, as stated above, the average income from an annuity will depend on the type of product purchased, any added riders, and other factors. Annuity income may range from several hundred dollars to a few thousand dollars per month, depending on the type of annuity and any riders added. By reviewing policy details regularly and adding riders to their policy, annuitants may be able to increase the amount of money they receive from an annuity. Annuities are a great way to ensure your retirement financial security, so make sure you understand your options before investing.

If you're considering an annuity as a part of your retirement income, it's essential to understand your options. Contact an annuity expert today to learn more about the different types of annuities and how they can help secure your financial future.

MADISON COURIER BOYS BASKETBALL PLAYER OF THE YEAR

New dedication leads to monster senior season for Trimble's Wilcoxson

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Brent Welty had heard the hype about James Thomas Wilcoxson when he took the head coaching job at Trimble County High School last summer and was eager to see for himself. The senior did not disappoint.

Wilcoxson made the most of his final high school season by averaging a double-double and earning this year's recognition as Madison Courier's Boys Basketball Player of the Year.

Wilcoxson, the first Trimble County boy to win the award, averaged 22.3 points and 10.1 rebounds per game for the Raiders while shooting better than 50% from the floor. He was the team's leader both on the floor and off and Welty was impressed by JT from the first practice.

"He definitely lived up to his standards and what we expected from him. There were plenty of times where he refused to lose and just carried us," Welty said. "There were times, like in the first round of the district, where his will just kept us in the game. He led them in the huddle, he was cheering us on, and put his head down and kept us going."

A lot has been expected of Wilcoxson since he was in junior high. His mother, Jessica, was one of the best players in school history and his older sister Shelby graduated two years ago as the second-leading scorer in Lady Raider history. His grandfather, JT Peniston, is a retired coaching legend with the Lady Raiders' program.

Wilcoxson has always been good, but it wasn't until this year that he was "take-over-the-game good." It was a rededication to the sport that powered the senior to his fantastic season.

"I took practice a little more seriously this year. I feel like that helped me a lot," Wilcoxson said. "The past four years, I wouldn't have just taken practice as seriously. I wish I had and worked a little bit more on my game."

At 6-foot-5, Wilcoxson was a matchup nightmare for opposing teams. He was capable of playing all five positions on the floor and at times was called upon to do

'Rebuilding' Southwestern dominates post-season awards

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Zac Nussbaum had seen the comments and knew that not much was expected from his Southwestern squad in 2022-23. Having graduated four starters from a 17-win team, the Rebels were given little chance to so much as break even this season.

By the time the dust had settled, Southwestern had enjoyed one of the best seasons in school history. Although the Rebels' run ended in the sectional championship game with a loss to powerful Brownstown Central, they still finished 21-4 with an Ohio River Valley Conference title, a win in the Jefferson County Invitational Tournament and an always-important victory over Madison in the annual Turkey Shootout.

"Not bad for a rebuilding team," Nussbaum said with a smile.

With that level of success, it's not surprising to see Southwestern dominate the Madison Courier's boys basketball postseason awards. Trimble County's James Thomas Wilcoxson may have taken the top prize as player of the year, but Nussbaum earned coach of the year honors while Brady Cook, who seized a starting position early in the year, is the freshman of the year.

Not to be outdone, senior Peyton Gwin, who averaged 18.4 points and 5.7 rebounds per game, and junior Jamison Lewis (18.5 ppg and 6.1 rebounds) were named to the Courier's

Madison opens season with rout of North Harrison

Madison opened the 2023 baseball season in style with a 12-3 rout of North Harrison Tuesday on the road.

The game, the first of Kyle Harsin's head coaching career at his alma mater, was over nearly before it began after Madison scored eight runs in the top of the first inning. Harsin eventually used four pitchers in the game as the Cubs coasted to the victory.

Colin Yancey was 3-for-4 with two doubles, two RBIs and three runs scored to lead the Cubs while Ben Orrill was 2-for-4 with a double, two RBIs and a run and Clint Hearne had two hits, drove in two runs and scored three times.

Orrill picked up the win on the mound after tossing one scoreless inning and allowing a hit and striking out two.

Madison (1-0) travels to Jeffersonville for a doubleheader on Saturday and hosts Greensburg on Tuesday.

Shawe blanks Mustangs

Wyatt Nichter tossed a four-hit shutout and Shawe opened the baseball season with an 8-0 win at New Washington on Wednesday.

Nichter struck out seven and walked just one while allowing three singles and a double in seven innings to post the win. He was also 2-for-4 at the plate with an RBI and a run scored.

Tyler Hill had three doubles and scored two runs for the Hilltoppers while Eric Liu had two hits and scored twice.

Shawe (1-0) hosts West Washington and Trimble County on Saturday and plays Assumption Academy of Walton, Kentucky, on Tuesday.

Rebels fall in 11 innings

Southwestern and Charlestown played late into the night before Charlestown scored a 10-9 win in 11 innings to knock off the Rebels in their season opener on Wednesday.

The game was close throughout with Charlestown scoring a run in the bottom of the sixth to force extra innings and both squads getting a run in the eighth before the Pirates claimed the win.

William Stockdale had two doublews, an RBI and three runs scored to lead the Rebels. Jamison Lewis had two hits and two RBIs and Austin Jenkins had two hits and drove in a run.

Stockdale allowed on unearned run in relief and took the loss.

Southwestern, now 0-1, travels to Batesville on Friday and hosts Hauser on Monday. The Rebels then host Class 3A No. 4 Silver Creek on Tuesday.

Levis set for pro day, another chance to impress scouts

BY ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Will Levis had no hesitation about throwing at the NFL scouting combine because he wanted to "show off" his "cannon" of an arm.

"It's been a lot of fun, a lot of new experiences, a lot of new people in my life, and it's just been very challenging, very difficult," Levis said about the pre-draft process on the AP Pro Football Podcast. "Just in taking the challenges head on and remembering to have fun with it. This is going to be a time of my life that I'll remember for the rest of my life. And I'll remember that I did it the right way and I did what I needed to do to help live out my dream."

The 23-year-old, strong-armed quarterback is expected to be one of the top players selected in next month's NFL draft. Levis, Ohio State's C.J. Stroud, Alabama's Bryce Young and Florida's Anthony Richardson are the top four prospects at the most important position in football.

They've already been scrutinized and analyzed by teams and their medical staffs. They've answered the same questions in numerous interviews with coaches and reporters, too. They'll go through it again at their pro days and with visits to various clubs.

Levis addressed one odd criticism about his muscular build. The chiseled, 6-foot-4, 232-pound Levis heard it mentioned that he might be too "jacked up" to play quarterback.

"I just take it as a compliment," Levis said. "I definitely know there's nothing about my stature that limits my ability as a quarterback and as a passer. If anything, it empowers it. So, I think it's just funny and people can say whatever they want to say."

Levis spent two seasons at Penn State, starting two games before he transferred to Kentucky. He was 17-7 as a starter for the Wildcats, completed 65.7% of his passes for 5,232 yards, 43 touchdowns with 23 interceptions.

Three of the teams who own the top four picks — the Carolina Panthers, Houston Texans and Indianapolis Colts — need franchise quarterbacks. Two others — the Las Vegas Raiders and Atlanta Falcons — are among the top eight.

Levis has no preferences.

"All of my experiences (with teams) have been great," he said. "I'd love to play for anyone who has interviewed me."

Levis, who earned a bachelor's degree in finance from Penn State, recently participated in Cash App and Uninterrupted's new NIL game show series, "The Road to NILion$," hosted by former NBA player Richard Jefferson. Levis and three other star student-athletes are featured in the four-part series that aims to educate student-athletes and their parents about ways to help sustain their lives and finances beyond their playing careers.

"It was a lot of fun. It was a campaign pretty much just centered around NIL, bringing awareness to the importance of paying attention to that and handling it with care," Levis said. "It's such a different kind of opportunity for these boys and girls that are going to be getting this money for the first time in their lives so as someone who's been through that. ... To be there and give advice and have some fun was a great opportunity."

Congressional hearing targets 'NIL chaos' in college sports

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE SPORTS WRITER

A congressional hearing Wednesday targeting "NIL chaos" in college sports drifted into the ramifications of athletes being deemed employees of their schools and mostly highlighted those who support congressional intervention to protect the collegiate model.

A subcommittee of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce held the first hearing related to college sports on Capitol Hill in more than two years.

The intended focus was name, image and likeness compensation for athletes. College sports leaders have been calling for help in the form of a federal law to bring uniform regulation to the way athletes can earn money off their fame with sponsorship or endorsement deals. Rep. Gus Bilirakis (Fla.-R), the chairman of the subcommittee on Innovation, Data, and Commerce, said passing a federal NIL law that would pre-empt existing state laws would provide clarity and transparency for athletes.

"The lack of uniformity across different states and institutions has created confusion and uncertainty and a federal standard is needed, so all athletes are playing by the same rules," Bilirakis said. "In short, we must strike a delicate balance between the rights of college athletes to profit from their own NIL while keeping the amateur status for all college athletes."

Seven previous hearings have been held in the House and Senate, but lawmakers have made no significant progress toward passing a college sports bill since the topic first started gaining attention.

The latest hearing was held days before the Final Four in the NCAA men's and women's basketball tournaments were set to be played in Texas.

Lawmakers questioned six witnesses for nearly three hours. They heard from two college sports administrators, the president of a Division II university, a former NFL player, a current Florida State softball player and one of the leaders of an athletes' advocacy group.

Most of the witnesses encouraged congress to act on NIL. "We need transparency in the market place," Washington State athletic director Pat Chun said.

Jason Stahl, executive director of the College Football Players Association, pushed back. He said any NIL regulations would only serve the interests of schools, conferences and the NCAA.

"The federal government should stay out of the NIL free market," he said.

The NCAA lifted its ban on college athletes earning money off their fame almost two years ago, but fear of lawsuits and a patchwork of state-level NIL laws steered the association away from putting in detailed and uniform rules.

"The current NIL chaos means student-athletes are left to fend for themselves," said Rep. Cathy McMorris Rodgers (Wash.-R). "And those at the top of their game must figure out how to maneuver through a multiple of agents, collectives and high dollar contract offers all while maintaining their academic and athletic commitments." The concern among many in college sports is NIL is being used as a recruiting inducement or as de facto pay-for-play, which are still against NCAA rules but have become difficult to enforce.

Today's Puzzle Solved

Ex-spouses continue their financial entanglement

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My ex-husband and I divorced in 2016. We are both in our 70s and retired. We still co-own our beautiful family home.

Since 2020, my ex and I have been living in the home (in separate apartments). This has mostly been compatible. We have a young-adult son who lives nearby. He has contributed greatly to the maintenance and management of the home, which has involved renting rooms to friends and renting out an "Airbnb" suite.

My ex and I have significant equity in the home. Our divorce agreement says that we are each responsible for 50 percent of the house expenses. I have been paying more to cover house expenses than my ex can afford to pay.

He says I will be paid back if we sell the house. Our divorce agreement says either one of us can call for the house to be sold, and so far, neither of us have wanted to sell. We would like to leave the house to our son, but rising taxes might make it unaffordable to continue living here in the coming years.

Our son is against this idea and is unwilling to co-sign a home equity loan (on the condo or our home) to help my ex settle his debts.

Our retirement incomes are so low that the only kind of loan we could get without a cosigner would be a reverse mortgage.

This situation is stressful for all of us. I have hired a financial adviser and will be getting her advice soon.

Any thoughts on how to move ahead peacefully and also solvent? — Peaceful Ex

Dear Peaceful: You are wise to enlist the help of a professional financial planner. (I have little expertise regarding complicated financial or real estate transactions).

My take on this is that if you are to be reimbursed for expenses on your home, then keep careful track and get a signed agreement outlining the terms for reimbursement.

A widow can't quite face FaceTime

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am a widow. I've been in a relationship with "Bernie," a widower, for nine years. We live quite a distance apart and trade off spending weekends together.

A few years ago, when Bernie established a FaceTime account, he included his late wife "Bernice's" name on it so that when he FaceTimes with me, the notification comes in as from "BernieandBernice."

I have asked him to change it, and his reply is that he cannot change it and that he still "cares about her." Obviously, he does not want to change it. I take issue with this. It's as though he is including her in our personal and sometimes intimate conversations.

Bernie says I am too sensitive; I say he is IN-sensitive. I feel it is disrespectful to me, and also to his late wife.

It hurts me terribly every time I receive a Facetime call from him. I have shed many tears because of this.

And, if he were to email or contact friends of mine through Facetime and the two names appeared this way, I would find it humiliating.

I have told only a few friends about this, who say they would never tolerate such insulting disregard. What do you suggest? — Tired

Dear Tired: I am assuming that because "Bernie" lives on his own, he likely has photos, objects, and memorabilia from their lives together, honoring her legacy.

The way I read your account, you believe he chose this particular "handle" for his FaceTime calls after you two started seeing one another, but FaceTime handles are often tied to an email account, and if he and his late-wife shared an email account, this handle would automatically turn up on FaceTime.

There are ways to change this. He could unlink FaceTime from his email address and have it only identified by his phone number (go to settings/FaceTime and "uncheck" the box next to the email address).

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Show how forgiving you can be when a misunderstanding occurs; if you're in a tight spot, be accountable rather than just charming. You may still have a chance for romantic moments with a special someone or pleasant conversations with friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may come across as more attractive than usual so this can be the time to take chances to impress new acquaintances or a potential new boss. Use this time to prove you are committed to a romantic relationship or strengthen an existing friendship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You could be feeling grateful and satisfied at your present situation. Your bills can be paid, and your needs met. You may have a loyal set of friends or an inspiring partner to keep you company and share the priceless joys of life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — An awkward situation could be made worse if you insist on getting the last word in — take this moment to turn the other cheek. Try not to commit to a promise because information may not be accurate, or conditions could change quickly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Think things through. You may need to be the bigger person or walk away if your friendly approaches are ignored. You could be easily led astray by someone without scruples so tune into your intuition and be vigilant when it comes to new relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Your open-mindedness and sensitivity can bring harmony to what might start out as chaos. Avoid making major business decisions or buying currently trending items as circumstances might not be what they seem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Be sensitive to a loved one's need to be taken care of or entertained but be careful not to overdo it or choose the wrong moment to flirt. You may walk a balance beam this weekend between being warm and approachable and being polite.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — A busy schedule and conflicting responses may leave you overthinking someone's feelings or actions. You may not notice a problem until it is too late to fix it, so take this time to reflect on things. Enjoy social gatherings and community events.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Do your best. You might bask in the spotlight, but this means your work could be under more scrutiny. Use your intellect to give you a boost in situations that put you in a good light and you can benefit from the experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — When it comes to money matters, avoid giving definitive answers when it comes to yes-or-no questions. There could be a potential for monetary loss if you lose focus. Double check credit card charges or receipts for major purchases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Your home could become the hub of social activities. Some uncomfortable issues could come forward unless everyone follows the rules, so clarify them. Hold off on making major decisions or any large expenditures this weekend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Shift into a lower gear. You may feel like speeding into the lead, but there is no point in competing when no one else has a car in the race. Be patient and find or wait for additional aid or support for getting a project off the ground.

ASTROLOGY

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Allow someone to stir up romantic feelings or friendships to become closer. Remember that opposites often attract, so you may have someone in your life act differently than you would. Avoid making major purchases or investments for the time being.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — There might be moments today when you feel that your individuality could be stifled, or that you are unable to express yourself clearly. Wait and see how things pan out before deciding on your next steps. Take time to focus on key decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — It's one thing to respect the opinions of others and to be considerate of their feelings but try not to be unduly influenced by every statement. Avoid overreacting to imagined slights to avoid misunderstandings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Cut out the middleman when needed. Adding simple logic to your negotiating skills may make enviable progress where others merely spin their wheels. Be generous with tokens of appreciation to anyone who offered to help you or did you a favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — There are no ends without beginnings or beginnings without ends. You may be caught off guard if someone you trust unexpectedly breaks a promise; It may damage your trust enough to cause you to second-guess that relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may be drawn to a person who operates on a different wavelength. It takes more than infatuation, physical chemistry and pillow talk for love to thrive. Friendships could also benefit from the same truth and affection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Develop insights into key relationships based on what may have transpired in the past. You may be wiser than most when it comes to managing assets and your finances. If single, flirtatious behavior could bring a new person into your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You are not just another brick in the wall. Demonstrate your resourcefulness and genius, and eventually someone will take notice. You may have a stockpile of power for good so find an opportunity to put it to beneficial use.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You cannot change the past, but you can learn important lessons for the future and make sincere amends if and when appropriate. Put proposed changes, major financial outlays and key decisions on the back burner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Keep on coasting along. Make sure your bills are paid and finances are in order but try to avoid making any major changes. Sit on your hands so you do not meddle in situations above your pay grade or make any crucial decisions.

NCAA TOURNAMENT: MEN'S BRACKET

Hurley's rebuild complete as UConn returns to Final Four

BY PAT EATON-ROBB
ASSOCIATED PRESS

STORRS, Conn. — Before every home game, UConn's hype man gets on his microphone and greets the crowd with, "Welcome to the basketball capital of the Wooooorrrrld!"

With four men's NCAA championship banners hanging from the ceiling at Gampel Pavilion along with 11 women's banners, it's not an entirely empty brag.

The Huskies (29-8) are the biggest name left playing basketball this season, making the Final Four as a No. 4 seed, joining Miami (29-7) and San Diego State (31-6), both No. 5 seeds, and ninth-seeded Florida Atlantic (35-3).

But while Connecticut can boast the most titles of any school in college basketball over the last quarter-century, this week's trip to the Final Four is the men's first since their last championship in 2014.

In between, UConn went through a down period that included three straight losing seasons between 2017 and 2019 while languishing in the American Athletic Conference. It fired coach Kevin Ollie, lost a subsequent legal battle over his salary and endured NCAA sanctions.

When Dan Hurley took the job in 2018, his charge was to restore luster to the brand.

"The timeline, with the way that we did it, building a culture and doing it without cheating, without lying and doing it with integrity and building it the right way, I mean, we're exactly on time," Hurley said Tuesday.

Hurley credits good recruiting, including the additions this year of freshmen Alex Karaban, a starting forward from nearby Southborough, Massachusetts, and Donovan Clingan, a 7-foot-2 center from Bristol. UConn followers growing up, both have played key roles.

And there were the transfer portal pickups, including starting point guard Tristen Newton and role players Joey Calcaterra, Nahiem Alleyne and Hassan Diarra.

"I would definitely say the history was a huge component of why I came here," Karaban said. "Seeing the four banners up there and seeing what coach (Jim) Calhoun had built and for it to be close to home for me as well was a major factor. It was something I wanted to do in my college career. I wanted to win national championships and make it to the Final Four and I wanted to add myself to history, to what was a super-cemented, historical program."

Calhoun, the Hall of Fame coach who built UConn from a regional powerhouse into a national one, winning titles in 1999, 2004 and 2011, said Hurley has done a good job capitalizing on that foundation, including filling the school's practice facility with pictures of past championships and Huskies who went on to the NBA.

The school's decision to leave the American and rejoin the Big East in 2020 also was a factor, he said.

"It helped, there's no question," Calhoun said. "It helped get recruits. The competition, the opportunity to go great places and play great places. Nothing against the American, but the Big East is one of the two or three best basketball conferences in the country. We have teams that traveled very far in the tournament."

The Huskies haven't lost a nonconference game all season, and the battles in the Big East, where they lost eight times, have helped harden them for the tournament, Calhoun said.

Hurley said he's been relying heavily on advice from Calhoun and women's coach Geno Auriemma on how to prepare his Huskies for everything that surrounds a trip to Houston and a date with Miami.

The Hurricanes are coached by Jim Larrañaga, who rose to fame when he coached 11th-seed George Mason to an upset win over Calhoun's top-seeded UConn team in the 2006 regional finals. Larrañaga sees a lot of similarities in that matchup and this one — a shorter underdog against a much bigger blue blood with a longer history of success.

"We're like 6-4, 6-6, 6-7 and UConn is huge," he said. "So, it's an interesting matchup in terms of contrasting bigs versus smalls."

But while the Huskies are 8-1 in Final Four games, Hurley said the program's tradition won't help his team on Saturday.

Final Four a chance for SDSU to double its championships

BY BERNIE WILSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO — The number of San Diego State teams that have won an NCAA Division I championship can be counted on one finger.

Many Aztecs fans and alumni have no idea because it happened 50 years ago and the school dropped men's volleyball in 2000. Brian Dutcher, who has been on campus for 24 years, does know about that championship and would love to double the school's total when he coaches the Aztecs in their first Final Four.

"Volleyball. Men's volleyball. Chris Marlowe," Dutcher said, referring to one of the stars of that 1973 team, who went on to win a gold medal at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics and once broadcast SDSU basketball games on local TV. "They're hard to get so you value every one of them when you can get one."

SDSU's first trip to the Final Four, secured with a nail-biting win against Creighton, has resonated with Aztecs alumni and fans, as well as throughout this championship-starved city. Even Bill Walton is stoked, which shows how big of a deal it is. The Aztecs (31-6) will play fellow first-timer Florida Atlantic (35-3) in the national semifinals on Saturday.

Marlowe, who does play-by-play for the Denver Nuggets, said he lost count of the number of calls, texts and emails he received after the Aztecs won the South Region final Sunday. The highlight was a voicemail from Walton, who grew up near SDSU, won two national titles under John Wooden at UCLA and watched his youngest son, Chris, play for Steve Fisher at SDSU in the early 2000s.

"It went on for maybe two minutes about 'How great it is for San Diego State and Chris Marlowe, you were an Aztec!' You know how Bill can rant. It was just so much fun to listen to his message. I called him back and I now have a dinner invitation at his house when in August we go down there for vacation," Marlowe said.

SDSU has had some great individual basketball players, including Kawhi Leonard, Michael Cage and two-sport star Tony Gwynn. Gwynn still holds SDSU's game, season and career assists records. He was drafted by both the Padres and the then-San Diego Clippers on the same day in 1981, and a year later began his 20-year Hall of Fame career with the Padres. He later coached baseball at SDSU for 12 seasons before dying of cancer in 2014 at age 54.

But the hoops teams themselves have been mostly mediocre. Fisher inherited one of the worst teams in the country when he was hired in March 1999, bringing Dutcher along as an assistant. Together they built the Aztecs into a West Coast power. Dutcher took over after Fisher retired six years ago. "Everybody's just fired up," Marlowe said. "Sometimes the longest road can be the most beautiful thing. When you're winning every year, when you're contending every year, there are high expectations. I don't think anybody really expected this San Diego State team to get to the Final Four, but they have a terrific, interesting team to watch."

A 'Clutch' tip helps Miller, Miami reach 1st Final Four

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Jordan Miller took 20 shots in the regional final for Miami and made them all, helping the Hurricanes rally their way into the Final Four. The personification of clutch.

Fitting.

A guy named Clutch is why he's at Miami, why Miller has become one of the stars of March Madness — and why the Hurricanes are one of the four men's teams lucky enough to head to Houston this weekend and see their season stretch into April.

It was around this time two years ago when Miami then-assistant coach Bill Courtney's phone rang with news that Miller had entered the transfer portal and was leaving George Mason. Courtney dove into some tape and began looking into Miller's background. Turns out, one of Courtney's old pick-up-game buddies from Virginia — Clutch, real name Gary Collins — was Miller's AAU coach.

"The recruitment got pretty simple from there," said Courtney, now the Hurricanes' associate head coach.

Good thing that recruitment went the way it did, because Miami has needed Miller this season — never more than it did on Sunday. Miller was 7 for 7 from the field and 13 for 13 from the foul line in Miami's 88-81 win over Texas, a victory that sent the Hurricanes (29-7) into Saturday's national semifinals against UConn (29-8). For the season, Miller is averaging 15.4 points and 6.1 rebounds per game, second-most for Miami in both categories.

He helped the Hurricans get to the Elite Eight last season — and at least one step further this season.

"That loss sat with me for a really, really long time," Miller said of the defeat to eventual national champion Kansas in last year's tournament. "I had to put it in the past because it was a new season, but having the opportunity to kind of right your wrongs almost and get past something that stumped you previously is a great feeling." The 20-for-20 combined shooting effort from the field and the line against Texas matched Christian Laettner's historic game for Duke against Kentucky in a regional final in 1992. Laettner — who went 10 for 10 from both the field and the line in that game — tweeted congratulations to Miller on Monday; Miller responded with "Appreciate you! Glad to join some elite company." There is rich irony in that Miller came to Miami from George Mason — as did Hurricanes coach Jim Larrañaga, who took that school to the Final Four in 2006 and got Miami to the Final Four on exactly the 17th anniversary of that win. "I just asked Jordan to ask the people at George Mason who know what kind of coach I am if he'd fit in my program," Larrañaga said. "And a lot of them told him, 'Yeah, you should go play for Coach L.' I was so impressed with him as an individual. You know, the basketball ability is one thing but his personality, his work ethic, his basketball IQ made me feel like 'OK, this kid will fit in really, really well.'"

May Madness: This March, FAU coach has Owls on cusp of title

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Dusty May's March Madness run with FAU likely was one few saw coming.

May had, to be fair, not much better than minimal name recognition when he took the Florida Atlantic job five years ago. That wasn't the case with almost all the other FAU coaches over the years, names like Mike Jarvis and Matt Doherty and Michael Curry and Sidney Green and Rex Walters.

Curry had been an NBA coach and played for years in the league. Green was an NBA lottery pick. Doherty coached at North Carolina, his alma mater, and Notre Dame. Jarvis had been at three other schools and coached a high schooler named Patrick Ewing. Walters was a Big 8 star at Kansas and played in the NBA.

And their FAU resumes don't compare — some don't come even close — to what May has done.

A school that used to be known for coaches looking to rebound now has a team headed to the Final Four, led by a coach whose claim to fame when he entered coaching was that he was a student manager for Bob Knight at Indiana. "I think Coach May obviously has done an incredible job building this program from humble beginnings," FAU athletic director Brian White said. "I think it is a great sign for the whole university and the athletic department that FAU is a place where you can come and build something special."

The Final Four — FAU (35-3) plays San Diego State (31-6) on Saturday in Houston, before Miami (29-7) plays UConn (29-8) in the other national semifinal — is rarefied air for the Owls. Truly. Before this year, the last time the Owls were in the final four of any postseason tournament was 2002, and that was the ASun Conference Tournament.

Think about that. Go two decades without so much as a trip to a conference final four, and end up this year in the Final Four. It's a crazy ride orchestrated by the only coach to win 100 games at FAU, someone who hadn't played in the NBA or been a head coach anywhere else, big-time or even small-time. "Florida Atlantic is a new university," May said. "It's been booming before I got here. One of the reasons I took it was because it was the right place at the right time, and it's growing exponentially. So we've talked about it. We've just never had that moment as a university."

Until now. There's no Division I men's basketball team in the country that has a better record this season than FAU. No team with more wins. No team with a longer winning streak. No team with a better home record, either.

All that would have been hard to envision five years ago. Or five months ago, for that matter.

The excitement on FAU's campus was felt most at the campus bookstore Tuesday. The Owls' Final Four apparel arrived late that morning, and students, alumni and fans walked around the store looking for their March Madness gear.

Some students stood on FaceTime with their parents, asking what size t-shirts to bring home to them.

"Gotta spend some money here and support," Chas Kaplan said as he checked out with a couple red and grey shirts.

And he's not even a student. Kaplan's aunt works at the university, and he traveled from Columbus, Ohio, to FAU to tour of the school's athletic department and support the Owls' tournament run.

DES. # 2001950
LEGAL NOTICE OF PLANNED IMPROVEMENT

The Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) has developed preliminary plans for a small structure replacement project on State Road (SR) 256 over unnamed tributary (UNT) to Lewis Creek, 2.49 miles east of SR 3, in Jefferson County, Indiana.

The project proposes the replacement of the existing structure with an 18-foot span by 10-foot rise reinforced concrete box that is 39 feet in length with a 12-inch sump, with headwalls and wingwalls. Additionally, new guardrail will be installed to protect the ends of the culvert and prevent errant vehicles from exiting the roadway. The replacement will be a single-span under fill structure, and the ends of the structure will be protected with Class 1 riprap on geotextiles to prevent scour. The new structure will be constructed on the existing roadway alignment, width, and profile. The roadway typical section will consist of two 11-foot lanes, one in each direction, with 4-foot paved shoulders on each side. Road reconstruction will consist of full-depth pavement replacement to match the existing pavement. Roadside ditches will be utilized to perpetuate existing drainage and outlet the water into the unnamed tributary to Lewis Creek.

The Maintenance of Traffic (MOT) plan will require a road closure and a detour utilizing SR 3, SR 56, and SR 62. The detour is approximately 14.1 miles long and is anticipated to be in place for two to four months. Land use in the project area is primarily agricultural and deciduous forest. Construction of the project will require approximately 1.0 acre of permanent right-of-way (ROW) and no temporary ROW. Construction costs are expected to be $1,078,323 and both federal and state funds are to be utilized for the construction of this project. Construction is anticipated to begin in Spring 2025.

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and INDOT have agreed that this project within the guidelines of a Categorical Exclusion (CE) Level 2 environmental document with no significant impacts to wetlands.

Preliminary design plans, along with the CE document, are available for review at the following locations:

Holiday has career-high 51 points, Bucks beat Pacers

BY PHILLIP B. WILSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Jrue Holiday scored a career-high 51 points, Giannis Antetokounmpo had 38 points in a triple-double and the NBA-leading Milwaukee Bucks beat the Indiana Pacers 149-136 on Wednesday night. "Obviously, I'm happy about it," Holiday said. "It took me 14 years to get 50 points. It came in a game that we needed to win, so I couldn't be happier."

Antetokounmpo added 17 rebounds and 12 assists to help the Bucks improve to 55-21. The two-time NBA MVP was an assist shy of a triple-double at halftime with 20 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists. He returned after sitting out Monday night in a victory at Detroit because of a sore knee. "It's hard to come up with the superlatives to describe them," Bucks coach Mike Budenholzer said of his top scorers. "They were phenomenal. Giannis set the tone with his aggressive attacking. Then Jrue for the whole game to have 51, that's hard to do in an NBA game." Holiday had 18 points in the third quarter, when the Bucks scored a season-high 46 points to build a 12-point lead. He was 20 of 30 from the field with three 3-pointers and hit 8 of 10 free throws. His previous best was 40 points in an overtime victory over visiting Boston on Feb. 14. "Together with Giannis with 38, those two guys were special, they put us on their backs," Budenholzer said.

The 6-foot-5 Holiday scored 30 points in the paint. "I felt like Giannis," Holiday said with a smile. "No dunks though."

Brook Lopez added 21 points for the Bucks. Rookie Bennedict Mathurin led Indiana — playing without its top three scorers — with 29 points. Aaron Nesmith had 22 and Jordan Nwora 18. Jalen Smith fouled out early in the fourth with 17. Rookie Andrew Nembhard had 15 points and 15 rebounds. "It starts with Giannis, one of the best players in the world," said Nwora, acquired from the Bucks on Feb. 9. "It's always tough playing a guy like him who is so different. You have to really lock into him. Then other guys get going, Jrue comes in and gets 51. It's tough to beat them on a night like that."

TIP-INS

Bucks: Forward Khris Middleton (knee) was inactive. He's averaging 15.5 points. ... Averaged 136.2 points in winning season series 3-1.

Pacers: Five inactives included All-Star point guard and leading scorer Tyrese Haliburton (ankle/elbow), center and second-leading scorer Myles Turner (back), and guard Buddy Hield (illness), the NBA's 3-point leader.

Ertz returns to US team for 2 friendlies with Ireland

BY ANNE M. PETERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Julie Ertz has been named to the U.S. roster for a pair of upcoming matches against Ireland after taking time off for the birth of her son.

Ertz has not played for the United States since the bronze medal-winning victory over Australia at the Tokyo Olympics. She and husband Zach Ertz, who plays for the NFL's Arizona Cardinals, welcomed son Madden last August.

Ertz was among 26 players named to the roster announced Tuesday by coach Vlatko Andonovski.

The United States first plays Ireland on April 7 in Austin, Texas, before the second match on April 11 in St. Louis. They are the last international games for the United States before Andonovski selects a 23-player roster for the World Cup this summer in Australia and New Zealand.

Also returning is defender Casey Krueger, who plays for the Chicago Red Stars. She took time off for the birth of her son last July. Kelley O'Hara, who hasn't played since last year's World Cup qualifiers, is also back with the team.

Ertz, 30, was on the U.S. teams that won World Cups in 2015 and 2019 and is the only player on the roster who is not currently playing for a professional club. She is currently negotiating with teams, Andonovski said.

"It's very exciting to be back with the team again and I'm grateful to have this opportunity. I have to work out details in regards to my club situation, but I am very thankful to Zach, my family, and U.S. Soccer for the amazing support they have provided to get me back to this point," Ertz said in a statement.

"I've been training hard, excited to see where I'm at physically and getting better each day. I am going into this camp the same way I always have, to compete with the best women in the world."

Andonovski said Ertz has been training with an MLS Academy boys team as well as personal coaches.

"She's committed to the game, she's committed to this team, and when I say committed, I mean fully committed in every aspect of it,"

Andonovski said during a conference call with reporters.

"She's ready physically, she's ready mentally, she's excited to be back in the environment and most importantly, she feels confident that she can help this team win another title — and for me, that's what matters most."

Missing from the roster was veteran Megan Rapinoe, who has a calf injury.

The roster by position with club affiliation:

Goalkeepers: Adrianna Franch (Kansas City Current), Casey Murphy (North Carolina Courage), Alyssa Naeher (Chicago Red Stars).

Defenders: Alana Cook (OL Reign), Tierna Davidson (Chicago Red Stars), Emily Fox (North Carolina Courage), Crystal Dunn (Portland Thorns), Naomi Girma (San Diego Wave), Sofia Huerta (OL Reign), Casey Krueger (Chicago Red Stars), Kelley O'Hara (NJ/NY Gotham), Becky Sauerbrunn (Portland Thorns), Emily Sonnett (OL Reign).

Midfielders: Julie Ertz (free agent), Lindsey Horan (Olympique Lyon), Taylor Kornieck (San Diego Wave), Rose Lavelle (OL Reign), Kristie Mewis (NJ/NY Gotham), Ashley Sanchez (Washington Spirit), Andi Sullivan (Washington Spirit).

Forwards: Ashley Hatch (Washington Spirit), Alex Morgan (San Diego Wave), Trinity Rodman (Washington Spirit), Sophia Smith (Portland Thorns FC), Mallory Swanson (Chicago Red Stars), Lynn Williams (NJ/NY Gotham).

First Team, with junior Peyton Cloud (13.7 ppg, 3.3 apg) earning Second Team honors.

Southwestern was the only local boys team to finish with a winning record this season, but several other area players had strong individual seasons despite not having as much team success.

Trimble County junior Ethan Horn averaged 20.2 points and 5.7 rebounds per season and joined teammate Wilcoxson (22.3 ppg, 10.1 rpg) on the First Team, while Shawe junior Philip Kahn III also earned First Team honors after averaging 20.4 points per game and shooting 75% from the free-throw line.

Madison struggled to a 4-20 record with its young squad, but the team's two top sophomores, Quincy Reynolds (13.7 ppg, 4.0 rpg) and Mason Davis (10.7 ppg, 1.7 apg) both earned spots on the Second Team. Switzerland County junior Jacob Williams did his best to make up for the loss of injured super sophomore Cam Craig by averaging 15.6 points and 3.6 assists per game, and junior Braden Stephenson led a rebuilding Carroll County squad by averaging 11.4 points and 5.0 rebounds per game as each were named to the Second Team.

just that. Not one to sulk or complain, he did what the team needed him to do, when he needed to do it, and excelled.

"He wanted to do better this year and he took it upon himself to make sure that we got our work in practice, but also we had fun doing it," Welty said. "When I took the job and I was asked numerous times what we were going to do. I said we were gonna go through our two best players and they both stepped up. JT was a big part of that."

Wilcoxson was hardly a one-man show. Junior Ethan Horn had an impressive season as well, averaging 20.2 points and 5.7 rebounds per game and was named to the Madison Courier First Team. The two teammates played perfectly off each other and Wilcoxson loved being on the floor with Horn.

"Being next to Ethan was probably the most fun I had. He's really risen up pretty high," Wilcoxson said. "I know that he will get to 1,000 next year and I look forward to him winning this award next year and making it back-to-back for Trimble."

Wilcoxson graduates with 1,526 career points, less than a hundred off Reece Webster's school record. He was also an all-state selection in football as a punter while playing quarterback the past three seasons and has also played baseball in the past.

But this year is likely the end of his playing career. While he considered playing in college, he has decided instead to enter the workforce and possibly pursue an associate's degree down the road.

"It's bittersweet and I'm going to miss it but it's what I want to do."

Whatever he decides to do, Welty is confident that he will be a success. And if he decides to return to basketball, he knows he'll be successful at that as well.

"I can always count on him to do his job. And he did that on a consistent basis," Welty said. "He's a hard worker and I think the sky's the limit for JT as far as what he wants to do after school or if he decides to play basketball in school. He's just that kind of person."

CARROLL ROLLS OVER TRIMBLE

Carroll County scored early and often and rolled to a 17-2 win over Trimble County at home on Tuesday.

The Panthers lashed five extra-base hits in the win with Landon Isaacs collecting a triple, a double and scoring twice. David Smith was 2-for-4 with a double and three runs scored, Coy Willhoite was 2-for-4 with a double and two RBIs, Aden Stephenson was 2-for-3 with an RBI and Preston Snow had a double.

Charlie Liter, Dylan Penick and Maldonado each had singles for Trimble.

Braden Stephenson allowed two unearned runs on three hits in four innings to pick up the win. Liter suffered the loss.

Carroll is now 5-2 overall and 3-0 in the 31st District while Trimble falls to 0-4 overall and 0-3 in district play. The two teams were to play each other again on Thursday.

Carroll County hosts Pendleton County on Friday, travels to Switzerland County on Saturday and heads to Taylor County next week where it will face Barren County on Monday and Bowling Green on Tuesday.

Trimble travels to Williamstown on Friday and to Shawe on Saturday and then plays at Scott County next week where it will face Model on Monday.

Minor leaguers reach 5-year labor deal with MLB

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Minor league players reached a historic initial collective bargaining agreement with Major League Baseball on Wednesday that will more than double player salaries, a person familiar with the negotiations told The Associated Press.

The sides reached the deal two days before the start of the minor league season and hours after a federal judge gave final approval to a $185 million settlement reached with MLB last May of a lawsuit filed in 2014 alleging violations of federal minimum wage laws.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity because details were not announced.

As part of the five-year deal, MLB agreed during the contract not to reduce minor league affiliates from the current 120.

The sides reached the deal two days before the start of the minor league season and hours after a federal judge gave final approval to a $185 million settlement reached with MLB last May of a lawsuit filed in 2014 alleging violations of federal minimum wage laws.

Union staff recommended approval and about 5,500 minor leaguers were expected to vote on Thursday.

MLB teams must also vote to approve and are expected to do so over the next week.

Minimum salaries will rise from $4,800 to $19,800 at rookie ball, $11,000 to $26,200 at Low Class A, $11,000 to $27,300 at High Class A, $13,800 to $27,300 at Double A and $17,500 to $45,800 at Triple-A.

Players will be paid in the offseason for the first time.

Most players will be guaranteed housing, and players at Double-A and Triple-A will be given a single room.

Players below Double-A will have the option of exchanging club housing for a stipend.

The domestic violence and drug policies will be covered by the union agreement.

Players who sign for the first time at 19 or older can become minor league free agents after six seasons instead of seven.

Major leaguers have been covered by a labor contract since 1968 and the average salary has soared from $17,000 in 1967 to an average of $4.22 million last season. Full-season minor leaguers earned as little as $10,400 last year.

The Major League Baseball Players Association took over as the bargaining representative of the roughly 5,500 players with minor league contracts last September after a lightning 17-day organization drive.

Minor leaguers players will receive four weeks of retroactive spring training pay for this year.

They will get $625 weekly for spring training and offseason training camp and $250 weekly for offseason workouts at home.

Beginning in 2024, teams can have a maximum of 165 players under contract during the season and 175 during the offseason, down from the current 190 and 180.

The union will take over group licensing rights for players.

Negotiating for players was led by Tony Clark, Bruce Meyer, Harry Marino, Ian Penny and Matt Nussbaum. MLB Deputy Commissioner Dan Halem headed management's bargainers.

Auburn's top '22 hoops signee, Traore, plans to transfer

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUBURN, Ala. — Auburn's top signee from last year, center Yohan Traore, plans to transfer.

The five-star recruit from France, who played a limited role as a freshman, announced his plans in an Instagram post on Tuesday.

The five-star recruit from France, who played a limited role as a freshman, announced his plans in an Instagram post on Tuesday.

The 6-foot-10 Traore initially committed to LSU but landed at Auburn after the firing of coach Will Wade a little more than a year ago.

He was rated the No. 24 overall recruit and No. 5 center according to the 247Sports composite rankings.

Traore averaged 2.1 points and 1.4 rebounds after arriving from Dream City Christian School in Arizona.

Traore was a member of the U15 and U16 French National Team.

He played nine minutes in Auburn's opening NCAA Tournament game against Iowa.

Traore failed to score and didn't play in the second-round loss to Houston.
